

Martin Haywood Neighborhood

Bounded by Swain, Hargett,
Coleman/Alston and Lenoir

Martin Haywood

The Martin Haywood revitalization project is located in the Thompson Hunter Redevelopment Area east of downtown Raleigh. Located in a rectangular area bounded by Swain, Hargett, Coleman/Alston, and Lenoir Streets, many properties are located in the National Historic District and are listed as structures that contribute to the fabric of the neighborhood.

Offering three bedrooms and two baths, the historic renovations of 612 and 614 East Hargett Street and 615 East Martin Street were completed in early 2006. 611 East Martin Street was completed in spring 2006. The properties will be sold to first-time homebuyers who meet HUD's low-and moderate-income guidelines. In addition, the purchased home must be the owner's primary residence.

The renovation of 612 and 614 East Hargett Street and 611 East Martin Street was completed by a joint effort between Barbeau Construction and Arizona Restoration. The renovation of 615 East Martin Street was completed by Freeman and Associates. Additional City sponsored improvements in the area include both new infill housing and renovating the existing City-owned property in the 200 block of Haywood Street. Infill homes are designed to be architecturally compatible with existing houses.
